

Recommended Syllabus Statements for Undergraduate Students

Fall 2023

Academic Integrity

Recommended statement:

Plagiarism or any form of cheating involves a breach of student-teacher trust. This means that any work submitted under your name is expected to be your own, neither composed by anyone else as a whole or in part, nor handed over to another person for complete or partial revision. Be sure to document all ideas that are not your own. In addition, you must not provide course materials to other students, whether individually or generally (such as online) that would enable them to gain an unfair academic advantage. Instances of plagiarism or any other act of academic dishonesty will be reported to the Honor Council and may result in failure of the course. Not understanding plagiarism is not an excuse. I expect you, as a Baylor student, to be intimately familiar with the Honor Code at: <http://www.baylor.edu/honorcode/>

Use of Artificial Intelligence (AI)

Notes:

With the development of artificial intelligence for generating text, visual material, and other potential course content, faculty must thoughtfully consider in advance the tolerance of each particular course with regard to these tools. At this time, University policy does not dictate a particular approach to AI. Instructors should provide specificity in the syllabus to establish course expectations and clarify boundaries for potential honor code violations. Below are three examples of possible syllabus statements, each suggesting a different degree of AI tolerance.

Recommended statements:

Example A (Intended to convey “Do not use AI in this course”)

All assignments should be your original work and should not be produced in part or in total with the assistance of artificial intelligence (for example, ChatGPT, Grammarly, or some other resource). Use of artificial intelligence without my explicit permission constitutes a violation of the Honor Code at Baylor University.

Option B (Intended to convey “This course will likely not use AI”)

Unless I instruct you otherwise, all assignments should be your original work and should not be produced in part or in total with the assistance of artificial intelligence (for example, ChatGPT, Grammarly, or some other resource). Use of artificial intelligence without explicit permission from the instructor constitutes a violation of the Honor Code at Baylor University. I [may or will] at times use artificial intelligence tools for instruction or allow or expect you to use them to complete your assignments, but in these instances I will provide clear permission and guidance for their proper use.

Option C (Intended to convey “Expect guidance on how to use AI in this course”)

The use of artificial intelligence (for example, ChatGPT, Grammarly, Midjourney, or some other resource) is generally acceptable in this course. However, you will ordinarily need to provide information about the tool(s) and the specific nature of your use of the tools so as to inform those who are [reading/seeing/hearing/observing] the work about content contributed by the tools, as well as to make clear the nature and extent of your own contribution to assignments. I will be clarifying the requirements for this documentation for each of your assignments, and, as is the case for more traditional documentation such as footnoting, failure to observe these requirements could constitute a violation of the Honor Code at Baylor University.

Class Attendance

Note:

Please be sure to include your attendance policy in your syllabus and ensure that it is consistent with the academic unit in which you are teaching. You may not hold students accountable for unpublished expectations for attendance and participation. The University undergraduate catalogue states that, “faculty members may establish more stringent requirements regarding attendance, punctuality, and participation” and “attendance requirements and penalties for excessive absences will be set forth in the syllabus for each course.”

Office Hours

Recommended statement:

One of the best ways to take full advantage of learning in my course is by coming to my posted office hours. I look forward to guiding you in your academic pursuits. Take advantage of the hours listed or email me for an appointment.

Note:

Pursuant to Baylor University Personnel Policy 701, full-time faculty members are expected to maintain approximately 12 regular office hours per week in order to be available to students for individual academic support and counseling and to provide office time for class preparation, grading, and completing reports which may be requested by various University offices.
